Comm Lead Program

Maame is a big tech enthusiast, she is interested in fintech, and always knew the Comm Lead Program would be the best option to achieve her goals.

Among her life and work experiences, she realized that she did not want to be a limited person, she wants to be in everywhere.

One of the reasons for starting this course is because the skills acquired in class, the diversity of the program, and the impact this will have on her future will be an essential key to help her make a difference in the world and build sustainable business, not only in Africa, but around the world. "Africa needs to know more about tech and finances".

Despite the fear of not being able to use the program as a whole, Maame is confident that at the end of the course she will be able to say "I build real connections and I'm full with experiences and knowledge".

Maame Ama Owusu

Maame, 28 yo, is a charismatic, friendly, direct, very focused, and above all, determined person. All people would like to have a friend like her, she is passionate, will fight for you, take your pain and do everything she can to help.

She concluded her bachelor's degree in Business Administration in 2016, and has since worked in different areas of industry in Ghana. Nowadays, Maame works as a Brand Member Advocate at a banking company in Seattle.

"Growing up in Ghana was a blessing."

She moved to the United States almost two years ago (February 2021) with the support of her family and seeking an opportunity for professional growth.

Maame's parents invested a lot in her education, she attended an International School in her country where she had the opportunity to meet people from all over the world. Because of the diversity of people around her, she did not feel cultural shock when moved to here. In addition, she found in church people who share the same culture and representation of her origin.

"May the Lamb that was slain receive the reward of His suffering."

A woman of faith, committed to her family and religion. Her mother always made sure that she could have a perspective of the world, and that, in the first of all, "God is good". Integrity, respect and love for the others are part of her values. Maame grew up surrounded by good people, a child of the community, with a sense of responsibility, ambition and desire for success.

Her will to learn and her faith in Christ brought her here. And all the learning gained will help her to achieve her life goal: to make an impact in Africa.
